Bio of Kim and Suzanne Sibley
November 2008

At Little Urbanites, we are committed to developing lasting relationships with our customers. We believe that it's important to shop with people who take the time to get to know you. Even when you shop online we want our customers to experience that human connection. At LittleUrbanites.com, we want you to know that you can always pick up the phone and talk with a staff member or one of the owners about questions or comments you may have.

The owners Kim and Suzanne Sibley, are a mother daughter team who believe that once you come into their store, you are family. Kids are encouraged to play around with toys such as the Svan Scooter or a Grimm's wooden puzzle while their parents browse the store or simply hang out with the fun and friendly staff.

Kim Sibley has a degree in Early Childhood Education & Fine Art, with 7 years experience working for a Children's Museum in Washington State; she has worked for the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, and also as a Day Care Director for a leading company in Portland. These varying experiences have allowed her to become an expert in her field, and she pulls from this knowledge when purchasing products for Little Urbanites. Kim strongly believes in human interaction and appreciates when customers contact her to discuss the products she sells at her store. She also will talk about daycare topics, safety products, and whatever else might be on a parents mind. For many first time parents, these kinds of tips are invaluable, and are why they keep coming back, even if it's just to pick up a pacifier.

Kim's mother, Suzanne Sibley, is a licensed interior designer and has 20 years experience in designing children's spaces. Her style is modern and functional. She enjoys creating a space that a parent will be thrilled about, and their children can use. Safety and development of a child are key focuses when preparing her design. To Suzanne, safety is more than eliminating sharp edges and obvious physical hazards. It extends to eco-friendly products like organic mattresses and non-toxic paints. Come into Little Urbanites at any time to chat about your ideas for the perfect nursery or to schedule a free design consultation.
